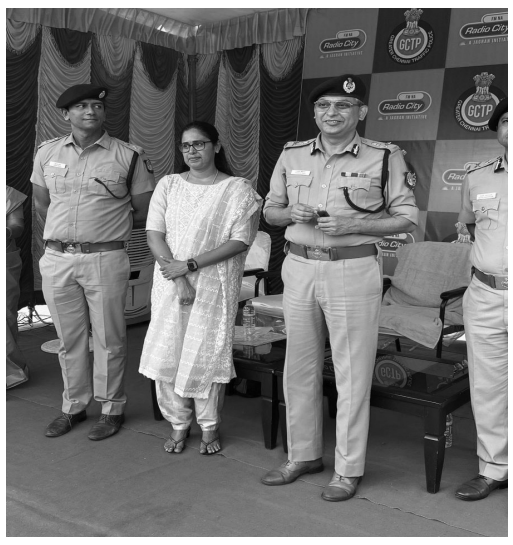
Radio City, Traffic Police to promote awareness 'Music Signal' Initiative

Chennai, May 18: Imagine waiting at a signal junction in the scorching heat, surrounded by honking vehicles and impatient commuters, when suddenly, the sound of catchy music and entertaining messages fills the air. Sounds refreshing, doesn't it? Well, that's exactly what Radio City, India's largest radio network, Chennai and Greater Chennai Traffic Police aim to achieve with their latest initiative; a new property - 'Music Signal'.The collaboration is all set to transform the exasperating experience of waiting at traffic signals into an engaging and informative



one. With curated traffic awareness clips in multiple jocks voice-overs and Radio City brand tags, the initiative aims to entertain and educate commuters about traffic rules and road safety in a fun and memorable manner. The PA system and music will be taken care of by the police, while Radio City Chennai will provide the content for the 'Music Signal'. The joint initiative is expected to engage commuters at 100 major signal junctions in Chennai and keep them entertained while waiting for the signal to turn green.Kartik Kalla, Chief Creative Officer of Radio City, said, "At Radio City, we are committed to being responsible corporate citizens and use our platform to contribute to society in a meaningful way. Our partnership with the Greater Chennai Traffic Police for 'Music Signal' is a perfect anecdote of how an innovative collaboration can promote traffic awareness and crea

BITS Pilani Dubai campus launches 5 pico satellites

Chennai, May 18: Under the leadership and guidance of the Moon Man of India, Padma Shri Awardee and former Director of Indian Space Research Organization's Satellite Centre Dr Mylswamy Annadurai, and in collaboration with UAE-based Edutech4Space, a pioneer in the field of space technology education, BITS Pilani Dubai Campus (BPDC), one of the UAE's leading technology and engineering universities has recently launched and tested 5 Pico Satellites using Drone Satellite Launch Vehicle (DSLV) at Sanad Academy, Dubai. This effort marks a significant first step towards Project MAHASAT.

Students were thrilled as the Pico Satellites started transmitting real time data of temperature, humidity, pressure, air quality, UV intensity, and orientation. The data were projected on a large smart board for the visitors, giving them the ambience of a mission control centre.

Present at the launch were dignitaries from the UAE, Chief Guest, Dr. Eesa Al Bastaki, President of the University of Dubai, Dr. Srinivasan Madapusi, Director of BPDC, faculty members and students of BPDC.

A team of 30 undergraduate students from BPDC studying in diverse streams such as Electronics Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, Computer Science, Biotechnology etc came together and managed to launch the Pico Satellites within 6 weeks of the announcement of Project MAHASAT.

Dr Annaduraiwho is overseeing the Project MAHASAT and guiding BPDC students said, "With the emergence of advancements in space technology, availability of trained manpower is going to be crucial. A very concrete academic plan has been devised wherein students of BPDC will be trained to make significant contributions in the field of Space technology of UAE and India. The university will also have its own Ground Station in near future which will enable students to communicate with their satellites, collect data, analyse it, and create predictions on weather, pollution levels, disaster management etc."

Speaking at the launch Dr. Madapusi said, "Pico Satellites are the future of space exploration, and they're already making waves in the classrooms across the world. While their low cost and relatively quick turnaround time makes them invaluable from an education perspective, they also have the power to engage students in a project from its initial paper design to building and testing to launch. Further, this is an excellent training ground for developing interdisciplinary skills and systems level thinking that are critical for the future. Through this hands-on experience in development, management, and mission training, BPDC is giving next-generation scientists a chance to learn valuable skills that will forge UAE's plans to become the regional hub for commercial space activities and advanced research and development".
